Surrender is the Start Line

Dear {{ contact.FIRSTNAME }},

“But he said to me, ‘My grace is sufficient for you, for my power is made perfect in weakness.’ Therefore I will boast all the more gladly about my weaknesses, so that Christ’s power may rest on me.” — 2 Corinthians 12:9

The world constantly tells us to hide our weaknesses, to fake strength, and to project an image of perfection. We buy into the lie that our flaws disqualify us from being used by God. But the spiritual journey operates on a completely different economy. God says that our weakness is not a liability it is the very landing strip for His power.

When we finally admit our powerlessness, we stop exhausting ourselves with the illusion of control. We discover that grace thrives exactly where we are honest about our inability. As long as we insist we are strong enough to handle life on our own, God will stand back and let us try.

But the moment we collapse, drop the mask, and admit our deep weakness, His sufficient grace rushes in to fill the gap. Don't despise your struggles today. Your weakness is the exact place where Christ's power wants to rest.

Instead of hiding a struggle today, admit it to someone you trust. Say, "I am really weak in this area right now," and allow them to speak grace over you.

Lord, meet me in my weakness with Your sufficient grace.
In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Remember, seeking help is a sign of strength, not weakness. You deserve a life free from addiction.

Sincerely,

The RGV Road to Recovery Team
